

To whom it may concern:

I am writing concerning the net neutrality rules which are under consideration now.

I live in an area that many people consider a city. We do not have the options that a city like Chicago would have, and assuredly, even Denver is behind. In this town where I live, Colorado Springs, Colorado, we have two cable internet providers, and then of course the cellular phone companies with hot spots.

I work remotely for a national company. I would have to relocate, which does not work for my family and me, if I were to continue on my career without the internet. The affordable, quick, and easy-ish access to internet allows me to provide for my family and continue to contribute to society in meaningful and applicable ways every day.

The internet providers in town basically sell faster speeds for more money. They force us to "bundle" items and it is difficult to purchase only what one wants, and not other services which are irrelevant to one's needs.

I also use the internet in creative endeavors as an artist and in helping people as an advocate for victims of violence. It is one of the most essential tools available today.

This is why I write to urge you, request of you, put on record my 'vote' for protections for consumers and citizens. As a person, tax payer, citizen, I rely on those charged with our well-being, you, to enact just and moral policy that protects us from invasion of privacy, fraudulent billing or price gauging, and that you assure a level playing field and equal access to all people.

MAINTAIN NET NEUTRALITY! Grow and expand access and fair equal pricing for all people.

Thank you,

Kristiana Huitron
